

DRUG REIMBURSEMENT RECOVERY SYSTEMS

There are two very pressing hurdles regarding Oncology billing that no practice can afford to ignore: 1) Continually deteriorating reimbursement for oncology drugs and services and 2) Oncology billing is the most complicated and difficult medical specialty to bill for on a daily basis. AmerOnc's Drug Reimbursement Recovery Systems (DRRS®) was created to help this ongoing problem.

What is it and who can use this service?

DRRS is a proprietary system that analyzes and reviews data up to 27 months old in order to identify potential inaccuracies in drug and administration charge capture.

Any Medical Oncology practice that bills for its drugs and correlating administration procedures can use DRRS.

Does it work? Is it invasive in my daily practice operations?

DRRS has been successfully used by hundreds of practices around the country.

DRRS has reviewed over $4 billion in oncology charges and when provided with correct data has found a significant amount of charges in every single practice.

Unlike some other auditing companies, 95% of AmerOnc's DRRS service is done through electronic extraction and evaluation of data off-site so that the work is very unobtrusive to daily site operations.

What is the cost?

Because of DRRS' proven track record of success, there is no up front or out of pocket cost to the practice. All of AmerOnc's costs including personnel, travel, etc. are at AmerOnc's expense.

The recovered reimbursement from the identified drug and administration charges are split 50/50 between the practice and AmerOnc.

No payments are made to AmerOnc until you have been reimbursed by your payors for the charges identified by DRRS.

Additional Benefits

All of the DRRS outcomes are shared with the practice allowing the practice to immediately seize opportunities for reimbursement on the identified charges.

The practice can make instantaneous changes to current billing and operational procedures to prevent future loss of revenue.
